COUNTY GOVERNMENT

Santa Clara County, sometimes referred to as “Silicon Valley,” is unique because of its combination of geographic attractiveness and social diversity. With its numerous natural amenities and one of the highest standards of living in the country, it is considered one of the best areas in the United States to live and work. The County’s population of 1.8 million is the largest in northern California. Santa Clara County is rich in ethnic and cultural diversity, including access to all of the attractions of the San Francisco Bay Area. There are 15 cities within the County’s boundaries: Campbell, Cupertino, Gilroy, Los Altos, Los Altos Hills, Los Gatos, Milpitas, Monte Sereno, Morgan Hill, Mountain View, Palo Alto, San Jose, Santa Clara, Saratoga, and Sunnyvale.

The elected five-member Board of Supervisors establishes policies to address issues that affect the day-to-day operation of County government and is responsible for an annual operating and capital improvement budget of more than $4.2 billion. The Board adopts ordinances that affect the unincorporated communities and is responsible for the County budget. The County operates under a “charter” form of government, which provides the County with more responsibility and authority. Under the charter, the Board appoints a County Executive to administer County government.
